Clinton / Gore cover range of questions in live national broadcast

By Michael Angelo and Silvia Turchin
Staff Writers

Gov. Bill Clinton and Sen. Al Gore, Jr., addressed more than 200 students last night via satellite in the Ethel Percy Andrus Gerontology Center. The team discussed issues ranging from the plight of inner cities to college tuition payment options.

USC was the only university in Califoria chosen to receive the syndicated Rockline Clinton / Gore special, which was sponsored by Trojan Democrats and Speakers Committee. Rockline is a national radio program associated with Rock the Vote.

"It is important that young people get out and vote," Gore said to the student audience. "Rock the Vote means Change the Country. George Bush doesn't want to make it easy to vote."

The mood of the evening focused on the need for change.

"We cannot take another four years of George Bush and Dan Quayle," Gore said. "The (democratic) movement is very much in favor of change, but frankly a lot is going to depend on the involvement of young people."

Both Clinton and Gore answered questions posed by university students.

Nona Liegeois, a senior majoring in international relations, was the only USC student to have her question answered by the democratic team. She asked about Clinton's plan for the rebuilding of South-Central Los Angeles.

"We are going to need thousands of young people to get involved," Clinton said, "across the lines of race and income to make the residents of Los Angeles feel that they have a future."

Clinton said he wants to set up a new banking structure that would make loans available to L.A.-area businesspeople. He stressed that private investment is needed to improve the economy of the inner cities.

Recall efforts fail, Pedranti relieved

By Rita Prosyak
Staff Writer

The results of a petition to recall Student Senate President Derrick Pedranti were received Thursday. Only 453 signatures were verified, 219 short of what was needed to hold a recall election, said David Crandall, director of the Office of Student Activities.

Approximately 1,300 students signed the petition that circulated two weeks ago, but the majority of the names were considered invalid.

Twenty percent of Pedranti's student constituency — 672 signatures — had to sign the petition to enact a recall vote. Most of the students who signed the petition, however, lived outside the 90007 ZIP code, Crandall said.

Others became affiliated with the Greek system during the period between signing and verification, which eliminated them from Pedranti's constituency, he said.

Other problems included duplicate signatures and illegible names and Social Security numbers.

Pedranti was happy when he received news of the petition results, and he said he would like to prove to the students that he will continue to work in their best interests.

"I'm very happy to still be in service to the student body," he said.

Plans for a future petition drive are unclear. If a second petition drive began, the senate Judicial Council would have to decide whether to continue adding on to the 453 signatures already present, or to make petitioners start over from the beginning.

Derek Reeve, a member of the Judicial Council, recommended the petitioners use identical forms and start from the beginning if they choose to pursue the impeachment. "There is really nothing in the bylaws or the constitution that specifies that a new petition must be circulated, but we (the Judicial Council) have not yet been approached to resolve this question," said Reeve, a senior majoring in international relations and history.

Pedranti said he is still committed to serving the students.

"I hope that those who have doubts in my abilities see that my willingness to reach an agreement with 'Shabazz' Moye proved that I am dedicated to pursuing the goals and interests of the students," Pedranti said.

Moye's reaction to the results was mixed.

Snake escapes from cage and tumbles out a window

On Tuesday morning, a USC student's pet slithered out a fifth floor window at Embassy Residential College and landed, miraculously unharmed, on the concrete sidewalk below.

The student's snake was found on the sidewalk in front of Embassy by security guard Fred Clayton.

Further investigation by University Security revealed that the snake belonged to a fifth floor resident who had kept the snake in a cage. Apparently the snake escaped from its cage and fell out the window.

The snake suffered no visible injuries.

USC sponsors debate of its own

Representatives cover both sides of issues

By Andy Garda
Staff Writer

The two presidential candidates may still be testing the debate waters, but Democrats and Republicans at USC wasted no time in diving into the issues Wednesday evening.

Kari Cutler-Chisholm, vice chair of the Trojan Democrats, and Bob Woolley, president of the Trojan Young Republicans, squared off in SGM 123, tackling economic, free trade and health care issues in front of a crowd of 70 to 80 students.

The debate was sponsored by the speakers committee of Program Board, and was moderated by committee chair Brandon Shamim.

Woolley opened by defending his party's 1992 candidate, President George Bush.

"You could choose one who looks forward, to progress in this country, or a candidate who looks inward, who wants to keep America in a stalemate of itself," Woolley said.

Woolley said Bush has been wrestling with Congress and trying to work with it, but with limited success. He said Bush has economic proposals in Congress and is waiting for them to be passed.

Woolley cited the main choice as one between an experienced president and a newcomer to federal politics.

Woolley also pointed to Bush's foreign policy record.

"George Bush has a strong record of condemning atrocities," he said. He pointed to Operation Desert Storm as an example of Bush's strength of conviction and his success in foreign policies.

Cutler-Chisholm agreed that there were two ways to look at the race and its candidates. But according to him, the two ideologies come down to moving forward under Bill Clinton or moving backward under George Bush.

Cutler-Chisholm cited what he termed as "12 years of neglect" under the Republican party.

"Republicans have compiled the worst economic record since the Great Depression," he said. "Not since Herbert Hoover have we seen slower economic growth, slower income growth or slower job growth," Cutler-Chisholm said.

Clinton understands that "the only way America can compete in the new world economy is to have the best damn workers in the world," Cutler-Chisholm said.

He went on to say that Clinton wants to do this through education, child care, health care and family leave — things that the Democrats feel are keys to American competiveness in the 21st century, he said.

After the opening statements, Woolley and Cutler-Chisholm were questioned by three student press representatives: Dmitri Williams of the Daily Trojan, Geoff Martin of V: The USC Weekly and Duncan Shaw of KSCR 104.7 FM. Each was allowed three questions.

KSCR's Shaw asked what the Democrats would do for health care since many Americans can't afford it.

Cutler-Chisholm pointed to two basic points in the Democratic plan: Every business would have to supply health insurance for employees, and costs would be more controlled.

Woolley said the Republicans would see that the states create health programs.

"In return," Woolley said, "each American will get a $3,700 tax credit, which will pay for those costs. Those who don't pay taxes will get a $3,700 tax cerificate. So everybody will be eligible."

He also said that Clinton's plan would involve a 7 percent payroll tax on top of all the other taxes already on a paycheck.

Other topics covered the deficit and the gridlock created by a Democratic Congress and Republican president.

Open questions from the audience covered freedom of choice, equal pay for women and the possibility of Ross Perot re-entering the race, which became a reality Thursday.

The debaters each ended with a three-minute closing speech, reiterating much of what they had covered, and again reminding the audience that it is both their right and privilege to vote.

Clinton: Rebuilding L.A. was discussed

"I believe that a president has to create opportunity by empowering people like (low income citizens) to take care of themselves," Clinton said. "We have to have partnerships with folks that live there. You can't do anything for people. You've got to do things with people."

After the forum, Liegeois said she was generally pleased with Clinton's response to her question.

"He didn't answer it completely but his ideas about transfering funds are really important as long as he doesn't cop out," Liegeois said.

Clinton and Gore outlined their plan to aid college students' tuition repayment. As a part of the proposed National Service Trust, undergraduate and graduate students will be given an option of methods to pay back their college debts.

According to the plan, graduates will be able to perform two years of community service or have their individual income taxed for a period of time as a way of repayment.

Students responded well to this plan.

"The main reson why I became interested in Clinton was because of his community service plan," Brigette Tippin, a freshman majoring in biology, said after the forum. "It is a great incentive to get involved in the community and also gives students a (financial) chance at an education."

Regarding plans to reduce the rising expense of health care in the United States, Clinton proposed an "American version of what European countries have done."

The plan would have employers provide health coverage to all their employees. The government would cover the health care of all unemployed citizens who met a certain financial need. Those who did not meet this certain need would be required to pay a small fee.

Clinton stressed the importance of increasing funds for more extensive research on breast cancer, AIDS, ovarian cancer and other diseases. He said the studies resulting from these increased funds must not "collect dust, but must be implemented."

About the AIDS epidemic, Gore said, "We've had no leadership in (this) crisis."

Both Clinton and Gore took time to discuss their positions on women's issues in some detail.

"I support increased research into women's health issues, such as breast cancer and osteoporosis," Clinton said."I think the president should break the glass ceilings."

The forum was sponsored by the Program Board Speakers Committee, chaired by Brandon Shamim, and the Trojan Democrats.

"USC is a predominantly Republican campus. The Trojan Democrats grew by leaps and bounds. They were very influential in getting this organized," Shamim said.

"I have been working on this since summertime," he said.

The students in attendance Thursday night — mostly Democrat partisans — were excited and enthusistic about the candidates and their positions on the issues.

Sarah Szalavitz, a freshman majoring in psychology said, "I think he's great. We will all benefit by him when he is elected."

Petition: Plans for future election recall effort unclear

"I'm not going to say that I agree or disagree with the results of the petition, but this sends a clear signal that student government officials are definitely accountable to the students. This should remind all of us in the Student Senate that the students are still in command," he said.

"I find it interesting that 1,300 students asked for Pedranti's resignation, and he refuses to step down," said Student Community Senator Michelle Inouye.

"I don't believe that he's trying to reform, but I am glad that he has admitted he's wrong about Shabazz. However, I remain weary of his administration," Inouye added.

Pedranti said the entire senate is working hard for the student body, guaranteeing results throughout the year.

"I am currently working on several programs that will benefit the student body," Pedranti said.

Pedranti said upcoming programs include an open forum that will encourage students to voice their concerns about university housing. It will be held Oct. 6 in the Parkside Apartments quad at 6 p.m.

Pedranti is also the chair of the senate task force to rebuild Los Angeles. He said he will head a new organization to help beautify the campus by having groups adopt certain sections.

Additionally, Pedranti is heading a task force that will revise the Student Senate's election system.

"Last year's (election) fostered hatred," Pedranti said.

Beating crime focus of vigil

The Southern California Christian Leadership Conference is holding a vigil on Oct. 3 from 6:30-7:30 p.m. at Hoover Street and Jefferson Boulevard.

City Councilman Mark Ridley-Thomas will attend.

Students and staff are encouraged to join the vigil, which will focus on the neighborhood and crime.

great balance at halfback, and most importantly, they are averaging 33 or 34 minutes a game of possession time."

On offense, USC is hoping to move the ball more this year against the Huskies than they have the last two times they met (Washington beat USC in 1991, 14-3 at the Coliseum). Sophomore quarterback Rob Johnson won't have to deal with the likes of Steve Emtman and Chico Fraley anymore, but Washington still has Dave Hoffman, an All-America senior linebacker.

Johnson has completed 37 of 60 passes for 479 yards and five touchdowns so far this season. Those statistics are good enough to rank him No. 8 in the nation for passing efficiency.

"After two games, there are two keys to our football team," Smith said. "One is the development of our defense, and the second is keeping our quarterback healthy. That's why we've been working so hard on our pass protection and keeping Rob healthy."

Curtis Conway, Johnson's favorite target, will again be utilized to show off his 4.25 40-yard dash speed, which is comparable to Bryant and Kaufman. Both of them are considered two of the fastest players in college football. Conway is tied for fifth in the nation in catches per game with 14 receptions in two games.

Wong: Go UW — heh, heh

you, take a good look at where it plays every home game — frighteningly loud Husky Stadium.

Looking straight down on the field, the stadium looks like a pair of jaws ready to munch up any unsuspecting team not up to the challenge. Crazy, drunk and zealous Husky fans occupy this loud den, making life miserable for opposing quarterbacks.

And you thought the Minnesota Vikings were the Purple People Eaters.

Washington is also led by a virtual god among coaches, Don James.

A winner of numerous coach-of-the-year awards after the 1991 championship season, James is the epitome of coaching genius. He's been flexible and openminded enough to change his team's offensive and defensive styles numerous times when the Huskies weren't playing to their potential.

Tomorrow will be the Huskies' toughest game, against USC, and it shouldn't be a struggle. The men in the purple jerseys won't have a bead of sweat on them. The No. 1 team in the nation versus a team that tied San Diego State? Easy money.

It won't even be close.

But I do have to warn you . . . I've been wrong before. Heh, heh, heh.

Jeff Wong, a sophomore majoring in print journalism, is an assistant sports editor.

Ticket deadline today

The deadline for USC students to enter the ticket lotteries for the home game against Notre Dame and the road game at UCLA is noon today. Both ticket lotteries are being handled by the USC Ticket Office, located in STU 100.

A student activity card is required for entry into each lottery. The student activity cards, priced at $65 (which also includes admission to home football games and all other home men's and women's athletic events), are currently on sale in the USC Ticket Office. The requirements to enter each lottery are as follows:

Notre Dame: The Notre Dame ticket exchange will be handled under the following guidelines. Students may submit their Notre Dame coupons, included with the student activity card, in groups of 1, 2, 3, 4, 6, 8, 10, 12, 14 or 16. Students who do not meet the deadline are not guaranteed student seating for this game. All student seating at the Notre Dame game will be reserved.

UCLA: Tickets for this away game are handled through a special lottery. One UCLA coupon, included with the student activity card, and $15 cash will be required for each ticket purchased. Students may submit their coupons in groups of 1, 2, 3, 4, 6, 8, 10, 12, 14 or 16. Students who do not comply with the deadline are not guaranteed a seat in the student section.

Jeff Wong

Can the jinx work again this week?

Three weeks ago, I predicted that Syracuse would be a dark horse contender for the national championship.

The Orangemen wound up losing to Ohio State two weeks ago, dropping them out of the national championship race.

Last week, I wrote about Oregon State and how the mighty Beavers would rise from the cellar to the upper division of the Pacific 10 Conference.

The Beavers were promptly blown away by Utah last Saturday, 42-9.

Do you see a pattern here? It seems as though every team I build up on Friday winds up losing Saturday.

Guess who I'm going to write about now. . .

The 1992 University of Washington football team will go undefeated once again and win the national championship. The Huskies will simply rip through their remaining schedule, including USC tomorrow, and beat some pitiful team from the Big Ten in the Rose Bowl on New Year's Day. It's that simple.

If you don't believe me, here are the facts:

— Washington's offensive backfield is one of the best and deepest in the nation. With two Rose Bowl Most Valuable Players (Mark Brunell and Billy Joe Hobert) at the helm, as well as a stable of the fastest tailbacks the likes of which have never been seen before, (Beno Bryant and Napoleon Kaufman — Jay Barry is currently injured and will not play tomorrow) the Huskies will dominate.

Kaufman, a local boy from Lompoc, Calif., who spurned USC for the Pacific Northwest, leads the Huskies in rushing this year and will start tomorrow. He's an absolute stud.

— Washington's offensive line, anchored by house-sized Lincoln Kennedy, will dominate the trenches and drive opposing defenses off the ball so quickly, you'll need a taxi to catch up with the defensive linemen and a plane to catch the linebackers.

This is making me sick.

The Husky defense is comparable, if not better, than last year's. Despite the loss of 1992 NFL No. 1 pick Steve Emtman and a flock of other stars, this year's unit is just as dominating, and may even be faster. The Huskies are first in the Pac-10 in scoring defense (allowing 10.3 points a game), pass efficiency defense and turnover margin.

There are no holes on this team. Their team speed is comparable to that of Miami's. Washington's strength is the defensive unit, and even when the rest of the team is playing at a mediocre level, the defense will stand strong. Just ask Nebraska.

If the No. 1 team in America isn't enough to convince

USC gunning at No. 1

By Michael Lazarus
Associate Sports Editor

Considering both schools had byes last weekend, USC and Washington still managed to stay in the spotlight during the last few days.

They meet Saturday in Seattle at 12:30 p.m. in a game ABC will televise to nearly 80 percent of the nation.

The Huskies became the No. 1 team without suiting up last Saturday. Voters in both the Associated Press and USA Today / CNN polls reacted unfavorably to Miami's near loss to Arizona. They voted Washington, which had been ranked No. 2 all season, into the top spot.

No. 20 USC also was in the national spotlight this past week when it suited up . . . for practice. Shortly after practice began on Monday, freshman linebacker Jon McGee was hit in the arm by a stray bullet fired a quarter mile away.

McGee was released from the hospital on Wednesday and will be rooting his teammates on to victory from his home in Tucson, Ariz.

Not that the Trojans (1-0-1) and USC Coach Larry Smith need any more motivation against the Huskies (3-0, 1-0 in the Pacific 10 Conference).

"I think the week off turned into a real blessing in disguise for us," Smith said. "We came out of the Oklahoma game, which was a very physical game and we were beat up . . . we had six or seven starters that couldn't practice at the beginning of last week."

The last time USC made the trek north to Seattle, the teams' fortunes were reversed. USC was highly-ranked, having opened the 1990 season with impressive wins over Syracuse and Penn State, while Washington was trying to recover from consecutive down years.

Jeff Wachner / Daily Trojan
Flanker Curtis Conway leads the USC receivers with 14 receptions for 195 yards.

What resulted was a 31-0 rout which changed the course of Pac-10 football over the past two seasons.

Washington used the momentum from that win to propel it to consecutive Pac-10 titles and a share of the national championship a year ago. The Huskies haven't lost a game since losing to UCLA in November 1990; they have won 17 in a row.

On the other hand, the Washington game marked the beginning of a downslide for the USC program. After three straight Rose Bowl appearances, the Trojans slipped to a minor bowl that season. They fell even further, with a 3-8 record in 1991 and a seven-game winless streak which ended two weeks ago when USC defeated host Oklahoma, 20-10.

After having to face Heisman Trophy candidate Marshall Faulk of San Diego State in USC's first game and Oklahoma's new wide-open offense, the USC defense will have more problems to deal with on Saturday.

Washington has two quality quarterbacks, each of whom have been named a Rose Bowl Most Valuable Player. Coach Don James likes to use both.

The likely starter will be junior Billy Joe Hobert, who has not lost as a starter (15-0). So far in 1992, Hobert has completed 49 of 83 passes for 502 yards and three touchdowns in victories over Arizona State (31-7), Wisconsin (27-10) and Nebraska (29-14).

Occasionally during a game, James likes to switch quarterbacks for an offensive series; so senior Mark Brunell gets the call. In limited action in three games, Brunell has completed 17 of 27 passes for 169 yards.

The good news about Washington's offense for USC is starting tailback Jay Barry won't be playing due to injury. The bad news is the backups — senior Beno Bryant and sophomore Napoleon Kaufman are probably better than the starter.

Kaufman, from Lompoc High School, has gained 259 yards on only 25 carries for an astounding 10.4 yards a carry. Bryant, from Dorsey High School, was the starter in 1991, but he missed the Huskies' opening two games with an injury.

"Offensively, there is a big change," Smith said. "A year ago, we didn't hear anything about their offense. Their offense is performing at peak efficiency. They are averaging over 400 yards a game, they have a

Tough weekend for water polo

No. 3 Trojans play No. 1, 2 and 4 at Stanford's Nor-Cal Tournament

By Roger Horne
Staff Writer

This weekend promises to be the toughest yet for the USC water polo team, as it travels to the Nor-Cal Water Polo Tournament in Stanford.

The No. 3 Trojans have six games scheduled, all against nationally-ranked teams, including games against No. 1 California, No. 2 Pepperdine, and No. 4 Stanford.

Fourteen teams will participate in the event and will play six games each, with the winner being determined by the best overall record.

"I think it's going to be a good weekend," said USC Coach John Williams. "This is always a good tournament, and it's going to be a good opportunity for us to get some very good game experience in Northern California."

Today, the Trojans (6-1) take on No. 13 Air Force (3-3) and the host Cardinal (6-1).

Stanford's leading scorers are Wolf Wigo, with 13 goals, and Chris Wallin, with 10.

The Trojans will have a chance to avenge the team's only loss this year against Pepperdine (6-2) on Saturday. In addition, USC faces No. 16 UC Davis (0-5).

USC lost to Pepperdine 6-5 in overtime in the championship of the UC Irvine tournament.

The Waves are led by Alex Asta, who has 19 goals, and Henry Rebello, who has 15.

On Sunday, the tournament's final day, USC battles defending national champion Cal (9-0), and No. 20 Brown (5-4).

The Bears' top scorers are Chris Oeding (19) and Troy Barnhart (13).

"You couldn't ask for more in a weekend," added Williams. "It just depends if we're up to the task on how we're going to respond to the pressure."

Women of Troy visit Bay Area

Seven-game win streak on line against Cardinal and Bears

The USC women's volleyball team, currently enjoying a seven-game winning streak, puts it on the line on its "Weekender," today and Saturday in northern California.

The Women of Troy (9-1 overall, 4-0 in the Pacific-10 Conference) will face No. 2 Stanford tonight in Palo Alto, and California on Saturday in Berkeley.

Stanford, a traditional volleyball powerhouse, is no different this year as they have started the season with eight straight victories.

However, the Women of Troy are a team on the rise as well. Starting out the season ranked No. 10, USC has jumped to No. 6 after beating the Washington schools last weekend.

Though Stanford did lose 1991 National Player of the Year Kristin Klein, the Cardinal does return 1990 National Player of the Year, Bev Oden.

Oden is averaging 4.5 kills per game this season with an amazing .428 hitting percentage. She is second on the Cardinal with 2.6 digs per game and is leading the team with 1.3 blocks per game.

"As good as Stanford was last year, I think they are better this year," USC Coach Lisa Love said. "They present a great challenge to us, but I like the way we match up with them."

Outside hitter Cica Baccelli was named Pac-10 Player of the Week last week after compiling 48 kills, 33 digs, and five blocks in three matches.

The match against unranked Cal on Saturday will not be a pushover for USC either. Last year, the Bears were 7-2 at home in conference play, but only 9-9 overall.
